1 MAP

The parish of Albury is one of those long thin ones, stretching from Sun Valley, over the top of Newlands Corner with its chalk ridge down to the fertile valley of the Tillingbourne and up to the greensand heath of Winterfold. It used to comprise four manors – Albury to the East, Weston Gumshelve to the West and parts of Shalford Bradstone and Shalford Clifford to the South; besides the village of Albury there were also the hamlets of Brook, Little London and Farley Green, but I intend to concentrate on Albury and some of the people who lived there.

2 WESTON WOOD

Weston Wood is a sandy ridge running E-W between the Tillingbourne valley and the North Downs, and on a shelf on the hillside was once a small settlement of bronze age people, excavated in the early sixties by one Joan Harding, of whom you may have heard (!) wearing one of her hats as an archaeologist. It was only a small place – one hut, 2 hearths, a green, 2 little fields – all now gone, excavated away for the sand. There are some large stones, some standing, some fallen, round about, of much interest to some, but said by geologists to be local stone from N side of Weston Wood. The Romans came to Farley Green – branching off Stane Street near Ockley, coming up Jelley's Hollow to build a small temple on the heath, then, we think, going down Birmingham Lane, then either up Water lane to Newlands Corner or along Guildford Lane (once known as Bloody Hedges) on to Guildford.

3 OLD CHURCH

The old church in the Park was once the parish church – started in Saxon times, just the nave & chancel are Saxon, the main building is Norman – the tower is theirs – it had a spire which collapsed later & was replaced by the shingled cupola in 19C. The S transept & aisle are 13C as is the added chancel. This was roofless and sealed off until recently, when it was re-opened by the Redundant Churches Fund – to some more the pity – I preferred it as it was. The church had been closed by Henry Drummond in 1842 and a new church built for the parishioners in Weston Street. It was designed by the architect of the Catholic Apostolic Church, McIntosh Brookes, based on the church at Thaon in Normandy & supposed to be in stone. Drummond was horrified to find, when he came back from holiday that it had been built in red brick!

4 OLD PARK HOUSE

The manor house in the Park was for a short time owned by the Bray family, Lords of the Manor of Shere. In 1637 it was bought by Thomas Howard, later 6th Duke of Norfolk as a timber framed house, who got his friend George Evelyn to enlarge it & then later to pull it down & build a new one. His brother, John Evelyn, called in to design the gardens, didn't think much of George as an architect: "George had a large mind but overbuilt everything".

1684 bought by Heneage Finch, later Earl of Aylesford, who largely rebuilt it after a fire in 1697; he sold it to his younger brother Captain William Clement Finch, a not very popular man in the village – he objected to having villagers living so close to his mansion so harassed them so much that many moved to the village of Weston Street (but where I can't work out!). He got a magistrate's order to close the road that ran from Sherbourne (the Silent Pool) to the E of Cooke's Place & also past the inn, The George, & also the road to Shere that ran to the South of his house.

1800 Samuel Thornton bought the house & had some additions made by John Soane – a new library & drawing room, a classical wing facing N with coupled Ionic columns, and a new staircase.

1811 Charles Wall continued driving the villagers out of the park

1819 The house was bought by the banker, Henry Drummond, “The richest commoner in England”, who proceeded to buy up most of the land in the parish. He it was who built the New Road from Sherbourne up to Albury Heath, closing the old road through the Park & Dog Kennel Lane, its extension South. Drummond’s daughter married Lord Louvaine, son of the Duke of Northumberland; upon her death in 1890 the estate passed to the Percy family.

5 PARK HOUSE WEST

In Charles Wall’s time some Gothic alterations had been made by Henry Hakewell, and in the 1850s A. W. Pugin was instructed to “improve” the house, which by then was a complete jumble. He Gothicised the whole building, clothed it in ironstone with brick dressings, battlements, gables and 63 chimneys, all different. Pevsner describes them as “some of the worst things Pugin did”, but he was ill at the time & the practice had to be taken over by his 17 year old son, Edward.

6 PARK HOUSE SOUTH EAST

7 EVELYN GARDENS

In 1655 John Evelyn designed formal gardens out of the hillside opposite the house of 2 terraces at different levels, a half moon pond with a tunnel through the hillside (which still exists – I’ve been through it), a vineyard below and a canal made by widening the Tillingbourne. Cobbett, riding through in 19C described it as without exception the prettiest in England, that is to say, that I ever saw in England”, even though by then it was considered old fashioned.

8 The one problem they had was that there was no water at the right level for the pond and its fountains, except at Sherbourne – The Silent Pool. To bring the water down meant crossing the land of Mr Risbridger at Cooke’s Place, who was agreeable, but on his death his widow insisted that the agreement would only last for 11 years until her son came of age. The lease lapsed & was not renewed, though the water was needed, and from time to time the Risbridgers stopped the flow altogether, or took water from it, although the owners of the Park continued to clear out the watercourse. Lawsuits followed for years, until finally the last Risbridger sold to Lord Aylesford, in 1749.

9 COOKES PLACE

Named after the family who had lived in Albury for centuries. In 14C Christine Cook married John Risbridger, who held the freehold house within the manor for a rent of “5 broad arrows with barbed heads, worth 1/8, paid in cash”. The house now consists of a central open hall, early 15C, with crown post roof, an added crown post parlour wing, late 15C of 3 bays, always floored, the front bay separated off from the rest. The right hand wing is later, with a clasped purlin roof, always floored, including in the attic. The decorative gable is similar to those at Malthouse Cottages Gomshall & Great Tanglely manor.

10 CATHOLIC APOSTOLIC CHURCH FRONT, 11 INTERIOR, 12 CHAPTER HOUSE

The beginning of the 19C were known as the years of ferment with 1789 the French Revolution, the Napoleonic Wars, the enclosures in England and the Industrial Revolution. People saw signs and portents in these happenings & in 1826 Henry Drummond called a conference of ministers (including the Rector of Albury) to study prophetic scripture and portents of the 2nd Coming of Christ. He was associated with a Presbyterian minister at Hatton garden called Edward Irving (hence Irvingites). They believed that the 2nd Coming was nigh, and so extreme were their views that both were excommunicated by their respective churches (Drummond was Church of England), and so they formed the Catholic Apostolic Church with Albury as its centre, though there were other churches in London. 12 Apostles (bishops) were appointed, of whom Drummond was one and in 1840 he had "the Apostles Chapel" built in the Park, designed by McIntosh Brooks, probably influenced by Pugin who designed the rose window and built of local stone & ironstone, with timber from the Park.

Members of the congregation would stand up and testify if so moved, but when Mrs Jelling, a villager from Farley Green felt moved by the Holy Spirit she was told "Sit down, this is not for the likes of you"!

The last Apostle died in 1901, and they weren't replaced, so the church as it was died out in this country, though the New Apostolic Church still flourishes abroad. The Albury church closed in 1952, but it is still kept in good repair (in 1990 repairs costing £100,000 were made – a new roof, heating system and lights) ready for the 2nd Coming.

13 LITTLE GEORGE now Grange Cottage

No houses now remain in the Park except three on the North side of the Tillingbourne. Grange Cottage was a two bay cottage with end smoke bay situated beside the old road from Sherbourne down to the old village. Its entrance is in the smoke bay, and in the 17C a wing was added to it at right angles joined by the added chimney which served both wings & was built partly in the smoke bay and partly outside in the gap between them. This wing may have been built by James Baylis, a victualler of 1663 as an inn with accommodation upstairs for travellers. In 18C it was known as the White Hart, then its name was changed to "The George" (It has always been known locally as the Little George) In 1839 it was the house of the bailiff to Drummond, later divided into two houses, but recently converted back into one for the Estate Manager.

14 WESTON HOUSE Palladian House

Part of the manor of Gumshalve was sold to William Weston in the time of Edward I c1300. In 1520 it was sold to George Duncombe, whose family built a new house on the site in 1650, which was burnt down in 1720.

In 1723 Mr Sturt bought the manor and built what is known as "the Palladian House", a U-shaped house facing E-W of stone with handsome portico to garden front, the North wing was for the servants and the South wing contained study, drawing & dining rooms and a boudoir. This was sold in 1820 to pay the Godshall families' debts & was bought by Henry Drummond, who pulled it down, because, it is said, he couldn't bear to have such a grand house within sight of his own!

15 WESTON HOUSE

He built the present house in 1830 of stone & ironstone with a thatched roof, which caught fire in 1852. Someone in the crowd watching the fire said: "I wonder what fool had that building thatched?" – it was Henry Drummond, who had the house tiled, as well as all the other houses in Albury. Louisa Bray, niece of Charles Malthus who had been living there wrote "A paltry house stands on the site (of the old)". In 1958 the house was bought by Dr. Maurice Burton, the well-known naturalist. He fell in love with the house after seeing what he thought was a woman beckoning to him from an upstairs window: "short, buxom, with the white apron of a cook or house keeper".

Traces of an Elizabethan knot garden showed up in the lawn during the drought of 1976. That the house had been important is shown by the fact that it had a pigeon house (now in Weston Yard), for 600 pairs of birds. Only Lords of the Manor or Abbots could have pigeon houses, and Elizabeth the first encouraged their building so that gunpowder could be made in this country from their guano.

A central chimney house of 2½ storeys which originally faced the road with the entrance in front of the chimney, which was extended by Anthony Devis, the artist, in the late 18C by a wing at the back to house his pictures. He was known as the "friendly man" because of his habit of carrying gingerbread in his pocket for the children and "The Man Mushroom" because when out painting he would sit under a large white umbrella – the first seen in Albury! When Devis died the house was left to his niece Ellen who ran a seminary for young ladies of fashion. The seminary was also expensive, as a item in the Farringdon Diary records that "Miss Dalrymple's expenses at Mrs Devis' school for last year (1793) amounted to £284". Mrs Devis prospered, she assumed a coat of arms & had her seal cut and her carriage painted. When she died, she in turn left it to her niece who was the mother of Martin Tupper, who had the house from 1840 & added the porch and a wing on the road side. He was a well known writer, but fell on hard times, let the house and had to mortgage to the Duke of Northumberland, who eventually re-possessed the house. Tupper was involved in the rediscovery of the Roman Temple on Farley Green, and vehemently opposed the closing of the Old Church. He was described as "a tiresome little man, and a bit of a joke".

17 ALBURY MILL

There was known to be a mill on the Tillingbourne in 1250, and until 1780 Albury House was the mill house until the two were separated and Devis bought the former. The new mill house of 1796 was burnt down in 1830 by a man called Warner. This was the time of agricultural trouble & the aggrieved man hid in the shrubbery of Albury House & shot the miller as he looked out of his bedroom window. He then set fire to the mill. (Some accounts say that he set fire to the mill first, and then shot the miller, Franks.) In 1886 the Estate bought the new mill & sold it to Ellis Laboratories who had just bought Albury House, but the two were separated again in 1970.

18 OLD POST OFFICE & DEANERY

I often wonder where the villagers went when they left Albury Park – people say Weston Street (the present Albury), Brook, Little London & Farley Green, but it is not obvious which houses they built, or lived in. However, I'm pretty sure that the three houses in the terrace and the large one at the end were built by Henry Drummond about 1840. The large one used to be called "The Deanery" and was built for one of the officers of the Catholic Apostolic Church, the terrace of three consisted of shops with accommodation over. One is called the Old Post Office, one Farriers Cottage and the third, which had been a pharmacy & the owner wanted to call it The Old Pharmacy, he was told he was not allowed to call it that, so instead called it “Not The Old Pharmacy” [original text corrected]. The ground falls away at the back allowing for a basement there, with first floor and attic over. They are built of stone, clunch & ironstone, tile hung at first floor level with Pugin type chimneys (probably from Pugin’s copybook). The W end is jettied over an alleyway.

19 THE OLD RECTORY

The present building consists of a mediaeval open hall house at the back, a very fine parlour wing, jettied at the end, with a central chimney house adjoining and Victorian additions. People often wonder why the rectory was so far from the church in the Park, and the answer may be that originally rectors were chaplains to lords of the manor & lived in their houses; later rectors became more independent – the one at Albury having to farm himself or be responsible for some 75 acres of glebe land in 16C. The old house at the back may be the original rectory, possibly moved: it is thought that there was once an open hall house on the site of the present chimney house to which the fine parlour was added -

20 this wing has a stumpy crown post roof, jetty, back chimneys, is panelled downstairs with a wall painting on the chimney breast. The original open hall house could have been moved back & built over cellars to provide a detached kitchen when the central chimney house was built – otherwise there seems no obvious connection between it and the front buildings until the whole was united later on.

A well known rector was William Oughtred, who came to Albury in 1600. He was famous as a mathematician who invented the multiplication and proportion signs – he taught Sir Christopher Wren & William Howard, he was a friend of John Evelyn & of Wenceslas Hollar the artist who did the painting of the Park House we saw earlier. It is said that he was more interested in mathematics than preaching!

21 Canon George Portal, a nephew of Henry Drummond, was rector in 1858 – he was a friend of Lewis Carroll who used to walk over from Guildford & visit him. He it was who built the extension on to the rectory as he had 16 children, and wanted somewhere to work in peace & quiet!

In 1920s a new rectory was built, near the new church, and the old one was sold to the Estate for the use of Lord & Lady Eustace Percy. The house was divided in 2 in 1953.

22 OLD RECTORY BARN

You wouldn’t give this barn a second glance passing on the road, but in fact it is a mediaeval glebe or tithe barn, for the rector to store his farm produce. It is of 5 bays, timber framed, now weatherboarded, with long passing braces. The roof is new after a fire 20 years ago, but originally it was hipped with queen posts (the well plates, and tie beams remain so I could see this). The N bay was always floored, the South bay had a floor added over a stable (or cowhouse) & above it lived the coachman & later the chauffeur. There was only one pair of large doors – to the East.

TALK SCRIPT, page 6)

23 BETTSWY COTTAGE & HUNTERS MOON

The first thing that strikes one about this house is its absence of chimneys – how an open hall house used to look. This is a 4 bay open hall house with two bays at the solar end jettied towards its farm yard. The other end has now been completely bricked. Three chimneys have been added at the back – the larger central one probably being for the inglenook added when the hall??? Was floored over.

24 KNIGHT & BROWNES YARD

A late 19C barn type building probably replacing the barn belonging to Bettswy Cottage. It is interesting because until recently it was a builders' yard & I was told how each part was used. It is weaterboarded on an ironstone base, with a half hipped roof and floor of clunch, and large doors to the East. It was divided up into a carpenters' shop, office, nail store, paint shop and coffin store. Outside was a distemper shed & a lean-to for the handcart. Adjoining and older than the barn was a long low shed and timber store divided in 2 with a work bench and saw pit which could be floored over, and, outside were covered ladder racks. The whole complex has now been converted into a (very expensive) house!

25 LEFT HAND COTTAGE & CREG-NY-BAA

Once one house this is an early chimney house of four bays with an added chimney at the W end, perhaps when it was divided in 2. It may have been a small farm house of four bays, always floored, with a floored attic, fine ironstone external chimney with room for a bacon loft and a small outshot at the back that may originally have been a lean-to, for there is a blocked window on that side. The second bay has four centred door heads in the partition as though to a cross passage – the door to Creg-ny-Baa could have been the original entrance & that half of the house the service end.

27 ROSE & SAUNDERS COTTAGES

When the owner of Rose Cottage told me that he thought his house had been a barn. I wondered, when I saw the brick & tile hung building. However, it turned out that he was right – the house had been built over and around a three bay ½ hipped barn with open cattle shelter or shed at the end. The original roof remained inside the new & the original bay posts were inside the new brick walls. A central chimney was added with bread ovens (hardly used) to serve both houses. It may have been a hay barn for Left Hand Cottage next door, for it has only one set of doors, the bay posts had jowls and the queen posts were raking. An unusual feature was the way a longitudinal spine beam had been built upstairs & from this sloping ceiling joists ran up to the purlins, so that each bedroom had a “pitched” roof for its ceiling.

28 LOWER NORTHFIELD

Gavin Maxwell's mother was Lady Mary Percy, daughter of the 5th Duke of Northumberland (her husband having been killed in 1914, 3 months after Gavin's birth) who owned much of Albury & the surrounding land. When Gavin was 16 he was seriously ill and spent many months in Lower Northfield recuperating. Lady Mary was a reclusive as the Percy's were Catholic Apostolic it was not easy to find another husband. So Gavin visited friends & relations in Albury & learnt to drive & reverse up & down the Park drive.

29 WILLIAM IV

To end on a less serious note we will go over the heath & down to the William IV pub in Little London which started life as a 2 bay timber framed agricultural or industrial building, thought to be late 15C. A 1st floor was added with a smoke hood & outshot, and later an outside chimney and a 19C bride wing.

30, 31

Last autumn I was walking up to the William to the library van, which used to stop there, when I saw what appeared to be a burglar in his striped jersey hanging by the neck outside. Further investigation showed that it was, in fact, a French onion seller complete with bicycle and string of onions, who was swaying in the breeze – most unnerving. On making enquiries I was told that at the time the year before when the inn was expecting its delivery of the new Beaujolais the French lorry drivers were on strike and to show their annoyance someone hung up this figure, much to the amusement of the locals who requested it again last year.

1. MAP Albury Parish= long, thin, from Sun Valley, over Newlands Corner- chalk, down to fertile Tillingbourne valley, up to greensand heathland of Winterfold. 4 Manors = E- Albury, W = Weston Gumshalve, S – Shalford Bradstone & Shalford Clifford. 3 hamlets, Brook, Little London, Farley Green. Concentrate on Albury & people who lived there.

2. WESTON WOOD Sandy ridge, E-W between Tillingbourne & North Downs. Bronze Age settlement on shelf in hillside, excavated by Joan Harding – archaeologist. Small place – 1 hut, 2 hearths, quern, 2 small fields – all gone – excavated for sand. Romans – Farley Green – Stane Street, near Ockley – up Jelley's Hollow – small temple, down Birmingham Lane, either up Water Lane – Newlands Corner or along Guildford Lane (Bloody Hedges).

3. OLD CHURCH Once parish church. Saxon start, main build is Norman – Norman tower had spire (collapsed), replaced by 19C shingled cupola. South transept (later decorated by Pugin), aisle & added chancel = 13C. Later roofless until recently reroofed & re-opened by Redundant Churches Fund. Closed by Drummond in 1842 – new church – Weston Street by McIntosh Brooks (also Catholic Apostolic Church). Red brick, not stone, based on church at Thaon in Normandy.

4. OLD PARK HOUSE Manor House once Bray's. 1637 bought by Thomas Howard 6th Duke of Norfolk – timber framed, enlarged by George Evelyn, friend, who later pulled it down & replaced. John Evelyn, brother – “no good as architect” – “George has a large mind, but overbuilt everything”. John = gardens. 1684 bought by Heneage Finch, Earl Aylesford – rebuilt after 1697 fire. Sold to brother, Captain William Clement Finch – unpopular – harassed villagers – moved to Weston Street. Magistrate's order to close road from Silent Pool, E Cookes Place, past George Inn to Park, also Shere road, S of house. 1800 Samuel Thornton – additions by Soane – library, drawing room, classical wing facing N. 1819 Henry Drummond, banker, “Richest commoner in England”. Large purchases. Built New Road – Sherbourne – Albury Heath, closed old road Dog Kennel Lane. Daughter married Lord Lovaine – son Duke of Northumberland. On her death, 1890, Percy's gained estate.

5. PARK HOUSE W Charles Wall – some Gothic alterations by Henry Hakewell. 1850s A. W. Pugin “improved” house – then a complete jumble – Gothicized it. Ironstone, brick dressings, battlements, gables, 63 chimneys. Pevsner “Some of the worst things Pugin did”. Ill, practice taken over by 17 year old Edward.

6. PARK HOUSE SE Part earlier house? Remains Soane block.

7. EVELYN GARDENS 1665 John Evelyn – formal gardens from hillside, 2 terraces, different levels, ½ moon pond, tunnel, vineyard, canal. Cobbett 19C: “without exception the prettiest (garden) in England, that is to say that I ever saw in England – old fashioned by then.

8. TERRACE & POND Problem= no water for pond & fountains. Sherbourne – across Risbridger’s land (Cooke’s Place). Widow = 11 years only till son’s coming of age. Lease ran out. Risbridgers stopped flow and took water, though Park owner cleaned. Lawsuits – last Risbridger sold out – Heneage Finch 1749.

9. COOKES PLACE Local family. 14C Christine Cook married John Risbridger – freehold of house within manor – rent: “5 broad arrows with barbed heads, worth 1/8, paid in cash”. Central open hall & early 15C crown post, late 15C added crown post parlour wing, floored, front bay separate. Later R.H. wing – clasped purlin roof, always floored. Attic. Gable like Malthouse Cottages & Great Tangley manor.

10. LITTLE GEORGE Grange Cottage. 1 of 3 remaining N of Tillingbourne. 2 bay cottage & end smoke bay, beside old road. Entrance in smoke bay. 17C wing at right angles, joined by added chimney – pantry in smoke bay – in gap for wing. ?Built by James Bayley, victualler 1663 as inn & accommodation. 18C = “White Hart”, later the George (locally Little George). 1839 = Drummond’s bailiff’s house, later 2 houses, now Estate Manager’s.

11. CATHOLIC APOSTOLIC CHURCH 19C “Years of Ferment”. French Revolution, Napoleonic Wars, English Enclosures, Industrial Revolution, “Signs & Portents”. 1826 Henry Drummond – conference of ministers (including Albury) to study prophetic scriptures & portents of 2nd Coming. Hatton Garden Presbyterian minister Edward Irving, 2nd Coming = nigh. Extreme views caused excommunication (Drummond = C of E). Formed Catholic Apostolic Church. Albury = centre, other churches in London. 12 Apostles (Drummond one). 1840 Apostles Chapel built by McIntosh Brookes, Pugin influence

12. INTERIOR Pugin = E window. Local stone & ironstone, wood from Park.

13. CHAPTER HOUSE Members testified. Mrs Jelley, Farley Green villager moved by spirit stood up, told “Sit down, this is not for the likes of you”. 1901 last Apostle died, not replaced, no succession, therefore church died out in this country. New Apostolic Church flourishes abroad. 1952 church closed, kept in repair for 2nd Coming. 1990 £100,000 repairs – new roof, heating & lights.

14. WESTON HOUSE Palladian C1300 part manor Gumshelve sold to William Weston. 1520 sold to George Duncombe, whose family built new house 1650, burnt 1720. 1723 Mr Sturt bought built “Palladian House”. U-shaped, facing E-W stone in the Italian style handsome portico to garden front – N wing = servants, S wing = study, drawing room, dining room, boudoir. E front by John Hassell 1823, (Garden). 1820 sold to pay Godshall family debts, bought by Drummond – demolished. Couldn’t bear site of grand house so near his own! Staircase > 158 High Street [Guildford].

15. WESTON HOUSE ENTRANCE 1830 built present house – stone, ironstone, thatch. 1832 Burnt. “I wonder what fool had that thatched?” “That fool won’t make the same mistake again – Drummond. All Albury houses tiled. Louisa Bray, Charles Malthus’ niece “A paltry house stands on the site (of the old). 1958 Dr. Maurice Burton, naturalist, bought. Beckoning woman “short, buxom, with the white apron of a cook or house keeper”. 1976 Drought – Elizabethan knot garden. Important house – pigeon house (now in Weston Yard), for 600 pairs birds. Only Lords of Manors & Abbots could have pigeon houses. Elizabeth I encouraged building for gunpowder from their guano – previous only made abroad – knowledge imported.

16. ALBURY HOUSE Central chimney house, 2½ storeys, faced road, entrance in front of chimney. 18C back wing by Anthony Devis for pictures. “Gingerbread man” “Man Mushroom”. House left to niece Ellen, had seminary. Called “Mrs”. Expensive, Farringdon diary “Miss Dalrymple’s expenses at Mrs Devis’ school for last year (1793) amounted to £284”. Ellen prospered, acquired coat of arms, had seal cut & her carriage painted. House left to her niece, Martin Tupper’s mother – 1840 he had house – added porch and wing. Well known writer, fell on hard times, mortgaged house to Duke who eventually re-possessed. Tupper involved in Farley Green temple. Vehemently opposed to closing Old Church. “A tiresome little man, a bit of a joke”.

17. ALBURY MILL 1255 a mill known. Till 1780 House & mill were one till Devis bought house. 1796 new mill house built. 1830 burnt down by Warner. Aggrieved labourer set fire to mill & shot miller, Franks at bedroom window, from shrubbery. Or vice versa. Last person to be hanged for arson in spite of Drummond’s pleading. 1886 Estate bought, sold to Ellis Laboratories – who united house and mill. 1970 separated again.

18. DEANERY & OLD POST OFFICE Where did dispossessed people go? c1840 Drummond built “Deanery” & row of 3 shops with flats over. “Deanery” for officer of Catholic Apostolic Church. Terrace of 3 = “Old Post Office”, “Farrier’s Cottage”, “Not The Old Pharmacy” [original text corrected]. Ground floor shops – ground (falls at back allowing basement, first floor & attics. Stone, ironstone, clunch, tile hung at 1st floor, Pugin (copybook) chimneys, West end jettied.

19. OLD RECTORY Mediaeval open hall house at back, jettied parlour wing with side chimneys, central chimney house & Victorian addition. Why so far from church? Originally rectors were live-in-chaplains in manor houses. Later became more independent. 16C 75 acres glebe land to farm or be farmed. Perhaps old house at back was original rectory, possibly moved – odd position.

20. ?Originally open hall house where central chimney house is – parlour wing added – stumpy crown post, jetty, side chimneys, garderobe, fine panelling, wall painting on chimney breast. Perhaps old building moved back over new cellars as kitchen. New C.C. [central chimney] house 1610 William Oughtred = rector. Famous mathematician. Multiplication & proportion signs. Taught Wren & William Howard (Duke Norfolk), friend John Evelyn & Wenceslas Hollar who did painting of Park House. More interested in maths than teaching! End 18C Robert Malthus = possible rector. Author “Essay on Population”. Father lived opposite rectory. Hare lip, cleft palate, advised against church. “only wanted country curacy”. Curate of Okewood Hill, near Ewhurst – saw poverty in Weald as he rode over – more births than deaths. Thought about population, birth control, struggle for existence. Darwin acknowledged his work – he used to stay at Haredean, study Temple earthworks & watch trains.

END OF ALBURY HISTORICAL DETAILS

Task to D. B. 2. G. 9/1/98

1 MAP. The parish of Albury is one of those long thin ones, stretching from Sun Valley, over the top of Newlands Corner with its chalk ridge down to the fertile valley of the Tillybourne and up to the greens and heath of Winterfold. It used to comprise four manors - Albury is the East, Weston Gunshelve is the West and parts of Shalford Brestone and Shalford Clifford is the South; besides the village of Albury there are also the hamlets of Brook, Little London and Farley Green, but I intend to concentrate on Albury and none of the people who lived there.

2 WESTON WOOD

Weston Wood is a sandy ridge running E-W between the Tillybourne valley and the ^{North Downs} ~~Downs~~, and on a shelf on the hillside was once a small settlement of bronze age people, excavated in the early sixties by one Joan Harding, of whom you may have heard (!) wearing one of her hats as an archaeological expert. It was only a small place - one hut, 2 hearths, a ~~quadrangle~~ ^{grain} stone, 2 little fields - all now gone, excavated away for the road. There are some large stones, some standing, some fallen, round about, of much interest to some, but said by ~~archaeologists~~ ^{palaeologists} to be local stone from N. side of Weston Wood.

The Romans came to Farley Green - branching off Stone St. near Ockley, coming up Jolly's Hollow to build a small temple on the heath, then, via Thrus, going down Birmingham Lane & then either up Water Lane to Newlands Corner or along Cunedford Lane (once known as Bloodp Heales) & on to Cunedford.

3 OLD CHURCH

The old church in the Park was once the parish church - started in Saxon times, the main building is Norman - the tower is thirteenth century - it had a spire which (just a nave & chancel, ^{are Saxon}) collapsed later & was replaced by the shingled cupola in 1400. The S. transept & aisle are 13C. as is the added chancel. This was roofless and needed off until recently, when it was re-opened by the Redoubt Church Fund - to my mind a pity - I preferred it as it was. The church had been closed by the Drummond in 1842 and a new church built for the parishioners in Weston St. It was designed by the architect of the Catholic Apostolic church, the Rev. Brookes - based on the ch. of Thaur in Normandy - supposed to have stone.

4 OLD PARK HOUSE

The manor house in the Park was for a short time owned by the Brang family, Lords of the Honor of Shere. In 1637 it was bought by Thom. Howard, later 6th Duke of Norfolk as a timber framed house, who got his friend Geo Evelyn to enlarge it, & then later to pull it down & build a new one. His brother, John Evelyn called in to design the gardens, didn't think much of ~~the~~ George as an architect: "George had a large mind but overbuilt everything!"

1684. Bought by Heneage Finch, later Earl of Aylesford, who largely rebuilt it after a fire in 1697; he sold it to his younger brother Capt. Wm. Cleveland Finch, not very popular man in the village - he objected to having villagers living so close to his mansion so harassed them so much that many moved to the village of Weston Street (but where I can't work out!). He got a magistrates order to close the road that ran from Sherbourne (the Silver Post) to the E. of Cakes Place & past the inn, The Wheatsheaf, & also the road to Shere that ran to the South of his house. 1800 Sen. Thornton bought the house, had some additions made by John Soane - a new library & drawing room, a fine porch N. with four Doric columns, and a new staircase.

1811 Charles Hall continued driving the villagers out of the park. 1819 The house was bought by the banker, the Drummond, "The richest Commoner in England", who proceeded to buy up most of the land in the parish. He, it was, who built the New Road from Sherbourne up to Albury Heath, closing the old road through the park, Dog Kennel Lane, its extension South. Drummond's daughter married Lord Lovell, son of the Duke of Northumberland; upon her death in 1890 the estate passed to the Percy family.

had been built in red brick

② PARK HO. W.

In Charles Wall's fine new Gothic alterations shed been made by H. H. Hobbes, and in the 1850's A.W. Pugin was instructed to "improve" the house, which by then was ^{complete} ~~complete~~ the whole building, clothed it in ironstone with brick dressings, battlements, gables, and 63 chimneys, all different. Pugin describes it then as "one of the worst things Pugin did", but he was ill at the time & the practice had to be taken over by his 17 year old son, Edward.

6 PARK HO SF.

EVELYN GARDENS

In 1655 John Evelyn designed formal gardens out of the hillside opposite the house of 2 terraces at different levels, a half moon pond with a tunnel through the hillside (which still exists - I've been ~~down~~ through it), a vineyard below and a ~~large~~ canal made by widening the Tullaghbourne. Cabbett, writing in 1900 described it as "without exception the prettiest in England, that is to say, that I ever saw in England", even though by then it was considered old fashioned. The one problem they had was that there was no water at the right level for the pond & its fountain, except at Sherbourne - the silver pool. To bring the water down meant clearing the land of Mr. Rushbrooke at Cookes Place, who was agreeable, but on his death his widow insisted that the agreement would only last for 11 years until her son came of age. The lease lapsed & was not renewed, though the water was needed, and from time to time the Rushbrookes stopped the flow altogether, or took water from it, although the owners of the Park continued to clear out the watercourse. Lawrensis followed for years, until finally the last Rushbrooke sold to Lord Aylesford, ~~the same time~~, in 1749.

9 COOKES PLACE

Nansel after the family who had lived in Albany for centuries. In 14c Christine Cook married John Rushbrooke, who held the ^{feudal} ~~house~~ manor for a rent of "5 broad arrows with barbed heads, worth 4s, paid in cash". The house now consists of a central open hall, early 15c, with crown post roof, an added crown post parlour wing, late 15c of 3 bays, always floored, the front bay separated off from the rest. The right hand wing is later, with a clasped porch roof, always floored, including the attic. The decorative scheme is similar to those at Mallhouse Cottages Gornahall & Cr. Tansley manor.

13 LITTLE GEORGE now Green Cottage.

No houses now remain in the Park except ~~those~~ Green Cottage. Green Cottage was a two bay cottage with end smoke bay situated beside the old road from Sherbourne down to the old village. Its entrance is in the smoke bay, and in the ^{substantial} ~~substantial~~ wing was added to it, at right angles joined by the added chimney which was built partly in the smoke bay and partly outside in the gap between them. This wing may have been built by James Baylie, a victualler of 1663 as an inn with accommodation upstairs for travellers. In 18c it was known as the White Hart, then its name was changed to "The George". (It has always been known locally as the Little George.) In 1839 it was the house of the bailiff to Dr. Hammond, later divided into two houses, but recently converted back into one for the Estate Manager.

~~WESTON HOUSE~~ CATHOLIC APOSTOLIC CHURCH

The beginning of the 19c was ^{known as the} years of ferment - 1789 the French Revolution, the Napoleonic Wars, the enclosure in England and the Industrial Revolution. People saw signs and portents - these happenings & in 1826 Henry Drummond called a conference of ministers (including the Rector of Albury) to study prophetic scriptures and portents of the 2nd coming of Christ. He was associated with a presbyterian minister at Hotten Garden called Edward Irving (Lanc. Brethren). They believed that the 2nd coming was nigh, and so extreme were their views that both were excommunicated by their respective churches (Drummond was Church of England), and so they formed the Catholic Apostolic Church with Albury as its centre 12 Apostles (bishops) were appointed, of whom Drummond was one. and in 1840 he had "the Apostles Chapel" built in the park, designed by J.C. Ince Brooks, probably influenced by Ruskin who designed the rose window, and built of local stone & ironstone, with timber from the park. † The last apostle died in 1901, and they weren't replaced, so the church as it was died out in this country, though the New Apostolic Church still flourishes abroad.

Think there were other churches in London

The Albury church closed in 1952, but it is still kept in good repair (in 1990 repairs costing £100,000 - a new roof, heating system & bells) ready for the 2nd coming ^{were made}

† Members of the congregation would stand up and testify if so moved, but when Mrs Telling, a villager from Farley Green felt moved by the Holy Spirit she was told "Sit down, this is not for the likes of you"

WESTON HOUSE

- 1. Palladian House
- 2. Weston House

Part of the manor of Gornchoke was sold to William Weston in the time of Edward I c.1300 In 1520 it was sold to George Doncastre ^{whose family} & new house on the site in 1650, which was burnt down in 1720.

In 1723 Mr. Stuart bought the manor and built what is known as "the Palladian House" - a U-shaped house facing E-W of stone with handsome portico to garden front, the North wing was for the servants and the South wing contained study, drawing & dining rooms and a parlour. This was sold in 1820 to pay the Goddard families' debts & was bought by Henry Drummond, who pulled it down, because, if is none he could it bear to have such a grand house with a sight of his own! He built the present house in 1830 of stone & ironstone with a thatched roof, which caught fire in 1852.

Someone in the crowd watching the fire said "I wonder what fool had that house thatched?" A voice behind him answered "That fool won't make the same mistake again" - it was Henry Drummond, who had the house tiled, as well as all his other houses in Albury. Louisa Bramp, niece of Charles ~~1958~~ the Palladian who had been living there & wrote "A pretty house stands on the site (of the old)".

In 1958 the house was bought by Dr. Francis Burton, the well-known naturalist. He fell in love with the house after seeing what he thought was a woman beckoning to him from an upstairs window. "oblivious, rapt, with the white apron of a cook or house keeper".

Traces of an Elizabethan knot garden showed up in the lawn during the dismantling of 1976. That the house had been important is obvious by the fact that it had a pigeon house (now in West's field), for 600 pairs of birds. Only lords of the Manor or Abbots could have pigeon houses, and Elizabeth the first excommunicated their building so that squanders could be made in this country from their spaw.

16 ALBURY HOUSE

A Central chimney house of 2^{1/2} stories, ^{which} originally faced the road with the entrance in front of the chimney, which was extended by Anthony Davis, the architect in the late 18c by a wing at the back to house his pictures. He was known as the "Squaring man" because of his habit of carrying squaring, and pocket fulls of stones, and "The Ipswich Yushroom" because when out painting he would sit under a large white umbrella - the first seen in Albury! When Davis died the house was left to his niece, ^{Ellen} who ran a seminary for young ladies. It was written at the time that Ellen, called this was "a dignified and masterful lady, she was the mistress of a highly respectable seminary for young ladies of fashion. The seminary was also expensive, as is seen in the Farnham Diary records that "Miss Dearymple's expenses at Mrs Davis' school for last year (1793) amounted to £284". Miss Davis prospered, she assumed a coat of arms & had her name cut on her carriage painted. When she died, she in turn left it to her niece who was the mother of Master Tupper, who had the house from 1840. & added the porch and a wing on the road side. He was a well known writer, but fell on hard times ^{at the house} and had to mortgage the house to the Duke of Northumberland, who eventually re-purchased the house.

Tupper was involved in the rediscovery of the temple on Farley Green, and vehemently opposed the closing of the Old Church. He was described as "a tiresome little man, and a bit of a joke".

~~ALBURY~~

17 ALBURY MILL

There was known to be a mill on the Tillyghouse c. 1255, and until 1780 Albury House was the mill house until the two were separated and Davis bought the former. The new mill house of 1796 was burnt down in 1830 by ~~a~~ a man called Warner. This was the time of agricultural trouble & the excrement man hid in the shrubbery of Albury House & shot the miller as he looked out of his bedroom window. He then set fire to the mill. (Some accounts say that he set fire to the mill first, and then shot the miller, Franks). In 1886 the Estate bought the new mill & sold it to Ellis Laboratories who had just bought Albury House, but the two were separated again in 1970.

18 OLD P.O. & DEANERY

I often wonder where the villagers went when they left Albury Park - Joseph says Weston Street (the present Albury), Brook, Little London & Farley Green, but it is not obvious which houses they built, or lived in. However, ^{practically} in the house that the three houses in the Terrace and the large one at the end were built by Henry Drummond ^{about 1840}. The large one used to be called "The Deanery" and was built for one of the officers of the Catholic Apostolic Church, the Terrace of three consisted of shops with accommodation over. One ^{is} called the Old Post Office, one Favre's ^{pharmacy} & the owner wanted to call the Old ~~Pharmacy~~ ^{Post Office}, he was told he was not allowed to call it that, so instead called it "Not the Old Pharmacy". ~~The Terrace consisted of 3 shops, with the ground falls away at the back allowing for a business there, with first floor and attic over.~~ They are built of stone, church ironstone, like being at first floor level with ^{Paris} fine chairs (probably from Regis Copybook). The W end one is jettied over an alleyway.

5) THE OLD RECTORY

The present building consists of a medieval open hall house at the back, a very fine parlour wing, jettied at the end, with a central chimney house adjoining and Victorian additions. People often wonder why the rectory was so far from the church in the park, and the answer may be that originally rectors were chaplains to the lords of the manor & lived in their houses; later rectors became more independent - the one at Athbury having to farm ~~himself~~ himself or be responsible for some 75 acres of glebe land in 16c. The old house at the back may be the original rectory, possibly moved: it is thought that there was once an open hall house on the site of the present chimney house to which the fine parlour wing was added - this wing has a steeply crown-poor roof, jettied back chimneys, is panelled downstairs with a well painting on the chimney breast. The original open hall house could have been moved back & built over cellars to provide a detached kitchen when the central chimney house was built - otherwise there seems no obvious connection between it and the front building until the whole was united later on.

A well known rector was William Oughtred, who came to Athbury in 1600. He was famous as a mathematician who invented the multiplication and proportion rules - he taught Sir Christopher Wren & William Howard, he was a friend of John Evelyn & of Wenceslaus Hollar the artist who did the painting of the Park House we saw earlier. It is said that he was more interested in mathematics than preaching!

c. 1798 Robert Halthus was (probably) another rector, he, the author of the "Essay on Population". This latter lived in Athbury, opposite the old Rectory. He was advised against going into the church as he had a hair clip & cleft palate & difficulty in speaking, but he said he only wanted a country curacy. He was also curate of Olmsted till beyond Ewhurst, & riding over there he saw in the wood the poverty and excessive births (more than deaths) which made him think about population, & the struggle for existence and birth control. Darwin acknowledged his work - he used to stay at Harewood, on the Heath, study the earth worms round the temple end afterwards sit in the garden & watch the trains go by!

24 Canon George Portal, a nephew of Henry Drummond, was rector in 1858 - he was a friend of Lewis Carroll who used to walk over from Caversham to visit him. He it was who built the extension on to the rectory as he had 16 children, and wanted somewhere to work in peace & quiet!

In 1920's a new rectory was built, near the new church, & the old one was sold to the Estate for the use of Lord & Lady Eustace Percy. The house was divided in 2 in 1953.

22 OLD RECTORY BARN

You wouldn't give this barn a second glance passing on the road, but in fact it is a medieval glebe or tithe barn, for the rector to store his farm produce. It is of 5 bays, timber framed, now weatherboarded, with long gable end. The roof is new after a fire 20 years ago, but originally it was hipped and 2 gable ends (the west gable and the towers remain as I could see this). The N. bay was always floored, the South Bay had a floor added over a stable (or cowhouse) & above it lived the coachman & later the chamberlain. There was only one pair of large doors - to the East.

* 20.31 Last autumn I was walking up to the William & the library son, which used to stop there when I saw what appeared to be a burglar in his striped jersey hanging by the neck outside. Further investigation showed that it was, in fact, a French man, quite complete with bicycle and string of onions, who was awaiting in the back of a motor interviewing. On making enquiries I was told that at the time when the man was expecting its delivery of the new Braun-Johnson the French lorry drivers were on strike so to show their emergency some one hung up this figure, much to the amusement of the locals who requested it again last year.

6) BETHWY COTTAGE & HUNTERS MANOR Lot 16

The first thing that strikes you about this house is its absence of chimneys - more an open hall house used to look. This is a 4 bay open hall house with two bays at the ~~end~~ end pitched towards its farm yard. The other end has now been completely bricked. Three chimneys have been added at the back - the larger central one probably ~~replaced~~ being for the inglenook added when the hall was floored over.

2) NIGHT & BROWNE'S YARD

A late 19C barn type building probably replaces the barn belonging to Bethwy Cottage. It is interesting because until recently it was a hives for a lot of work - a half hipped roof and floor of chestnut, and large doors to the East. It was divided up into a carpenter's shop, office, nail store, paint shop and coffin store. Outside was a disrepair shed & a ^{lean-to} for the handcart. Adjacent, an older than the barn was a long low shed ^{with timber lattice} ~~divided in 2~~ for with a work bench and saw pit, which could be floored over, and outside ^{were} covered ladder racks. The whole complex has now been converted into a (very expensive) house!

25) H. COTTAGE & CREGG, NY-BAA

Once one house this is an early chimney house of four bays, with an added chimney at the W. end, perhaps when it was divided in 2. It may have been a small farm house of four bays, always floored, with a floored attic. Fine windows, especially chimney with room for a bacon loft and a small outshot at the back that may once have been a beer-to, for there is a blocked window on that side. The second bay has four centred door heads in the partition as though it a cross passage - the door to CREGG, NY-BAA could have been the original entrance, that half of the house its service end.

27) ROSE & SAUNDERS COTTAGES

When the owner of Rose Cottage told me that he thought his house had been a barn I wondered, when I saw the house & the heavy masonry. However, it turned out that he was right - the house had been built over and around a three bay, 1/2 hipped barn with open cattle shelter or shed at the end. The original roof remained in places the new, the original bay points were inside the new brick walls. A central chimney was added with bread ovens (hardly used) to serve both houses. It may have been a hay barn for L. Hare Cottage next door, for it had only one set of doors, the bay points had joists and the queen posts were missing. An unusual feature was the way a longitudinal spine beam had been built up, extending from this sloping ceiling joists ran up to the purlins, so that each bedroom had a "pitched" roof for its ceiling!

28) DOWER NORTHFIELD

Clara Maxwell's mother was Lady Mary Percy, daughter of the 5th Duke of Northumberland who owned much of Albany & the surrounding land. When Clara was 16 she was seriously ill and spent many months in Lower Northfield recuperating. Lady Mary was a Catholic as the Percys were Catholic. Apostolic it was not easy to find another household. So some visited friends & relations in Albany & meant to drive a car up along the back drive.

(Her husband having been killed in 1910, 3 months after Clara's birth)

29) WILLIAM IV

To end on a less serious note we will go over the wall & down to the agricultural or industrial building, though it be late 18C. A 1st floor was added with a narrow hall, curio cabinet, and later an outside chimney and a 19C brick wing # 2.
